FOREWORD

This statistical report on the free Negro ownership of slaves was made possible in 1921 when the Director of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History obtained from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial an appropriation for the support of research into certain neglected aspects of Negro History. This special report, however, was not the objective of the Research Department of the Association. It developed rather as a by-product. In compiling statistics for the much larger report on Free Negro Heads of Families in the United States in 1830, the investigators found so many cases of Negroes owning slaves that it was decided to take special notice of this phase of the History of the free Negro.

The report on the Absentee Ownership of Slaves in the United States in 1830 attached hereto developed in a similar way. The investigators were impressed also with the frequent occurrence of such wide separation of the master from the slave. In noting the cases of free Negro ownership it was a simple matter, then, to record also the cases of absentee ownership, and it was done accordingly.

INTRODUCTION

The aim of this report on the free Negro is to facilitate the further study of this neglected group. Most of these people have been forgotten, for persons supposedly well-informed in history are surprised to learn today that about a half million, almost one-seventh of the Negroes of this country, were free prior to the emancipation in 1865. It is hardly believed that a considerable number of Negroes were owners of slaves themselves, and in some cases controlled large plantations.

There were several reasons for selecting the census of 1830. In the first place, the earlier reports do not give as much information as the census of 1830. At that time, moreover, the free Negroes had about reached their highest mark as a distinct class. The reaction which set in earlier in the century restricted their freedom and in many cases expelled them from the South. This census, then, evidently reports the names of a larger number of representative free Negroes than any other census prior to their debasement to a lower status or their migration from the South. This trek reached its highest point between 1830 and 1835. Most of the free Negroes in the North in 1830, therefore, had been there for some years.

The census records show that the majority of the Negro owners of slaves were such from the point of view of philanthropy. In many instances the husband purchased the wife or vice versa. The slaves belonging to such families were few compared with the large numbers found among the whites on the well-developed plantations. Slaves of Negroes were in some cases the children of a free father who had purchased his wife. If he did not thereafter emancipate the mother, as so many such husbands failed to do, his own children were born his slaves and were thus reported by the enumerators.

Some of these husbands were not anxious to liberate their wives immediately. They considered it advisable to put them on probation for a few years, and if they did not find them satisfactory they would sell their wives as other slaveholders disposed of Negroes. For example, a Negro shoemaker in Charleston, South Carolina, purchased his wife for $700; but, on finding her hard to please, he sold her a few months thereafter for $750, gaining $50 by the transaction. The editor personally knew a man in Cumberland County, Virginia, whose mother was purchased by his father who had first bought himself. Becoming enamored of a man slave, she gave him her husband's manumission papers that they might escape together to free soil. Upon detecting this plot, the officers of the law received the impression that her husband had turned over the papers to the slave and arrested the freedman for the supposed offense. He had such difficulty in extricating himself from this complication that his attorney's fees amounted to $500. To pay them he disposed of his faithless wife for that amount.

Benevolent Negroes often purchased slaves to make their lot easier by granting them their freedom for a nominal sum, or by permitting them to work it out on liberal terms. John Barry Meachum, a Negro Baptist minister in St. Louis, thus came into possession of as many as twenty slaves by 1836. The exploitation type of Negro slaveholder, moreover, sometimes feeling the sting of conscience, liberated his slaves. Thus did Samuel Gibson, a Negro of Mississippi, in 1844, when he brought his six slaves to Cincinnati, Ohio, and settled them on free territory.

Having economic interests in common with the white slaveholders, the Negro owners of slaves often enjoyed the same social standing. It was not exceptional for them to attend the same church, to educate their children in the same private school, and to frequent the same places of amusement. Under such circumstances miscegenation easily followed. While those taking the census of 1830 did not generally record such facts, the few who did, as in the case of Nansemond County, Virginia, reported a situation which today would be considered alarming. In this particular County there appeared among the slaveholders free Negroes designated as Jacob of Read and white wife and Syphe of Matthews and white wife. Others reported with white wives were not slaveholders.

Practically all of these Negro slaveholders were in the South.[1] Slavery, however, at that time had not been ex-

[1] These facts were extracted from the manuscript schedules returned by those who took the census of the United States in 1830. After C. G. Woodson, the editor, had first copied the record of one state to acquaint himself in detail with the information given in these census reports, the statistics were then copied under his direction by three persons. One of them has had the advantage of two years' normal training after finishing high school, and two of them have completed college courses at Howard University and at the University of Michigan. The matter thus collected was then verified by Mr. Alrutheus A. Taylor, an alumnus of Michigan and a Harvard Master of Arts in History and Economics, now employed as Associate Investigator of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. Further verification was made by C. G. Woodson.

These records were copied just as those who took the census returned their findings. The only change made in the case of Negro Owners of slaves was to write the family name first, a rule which these enumerators did not all follow.

Some enumerators made no distinction as to race in recording the names, but merely indicated the status of the head of the family under free persons of color. Other enumerators wrote Negro, Cold. or Colored, or used F. N. for free Negro, F. of C. for free person of color, F. M. C. for free man of color, F. W. C. for free woman of color, or fb. and fbk. for free black, directly after the name.

The question mark after a name or a figure or in a column indicates that the record is such that the fact could not be accurately determined.

The column giving the AGE does not every time show the age of the head of the family. In some instances the age of the head of the family cannot be exactly figured out. The age here given is that of the oldest person in the family of the sex indicated as the head of the family. The record as to sex, moreover, is often confusing. The name of a male is sometimes given as the head of the family while the sex is indicated as female or vice versa. In eighty per cent of the cases which the investigator has tested, however, it can be shown that this is the actual age of the head of the family.

"10–24" means 10 years of age and under 24, and "24–36" means 24 years of age and under 36. 100 means a hundred or more than a hundred years old.

The column entitled SLAVES gives the number of slaves owned by the head of the family.

TOTAL means the number of persons in the family together with all of terminated altogether in the North, and even there the Negro was following in the footsteps of the white man, as this report will show.

In the South where almost all of the Negro slaveholders were, moreover, we find some of them competing with the large planters in the number of slaves they owned. Most of such Negro proprietors lived in Louisiana, South Carolina, Maryland and Virginia, as did the majority of all such slave owners. There are, moreover, a few instances of confusing absentee ownership with Negro ownership. Sometimes a free Negro had charge of a plantation, but did not own the slaves himself, and the enumerator returned him as the owner.

Excepting those of Louisiana, one may say that most of the Negro owners of slaves lived in urban communities. In those parts of the South where the influence of the kind planter near the coast was not felt, the Negro owner of slaves did not frequently appear. The free Negroes themselves, moreover, encountered such difficulties in the lower South and Southwest that they had to seek more hospitable communities in free States.

By 1840 the trend toward degrading the free Negro to a lower status had become evident even in the apparently benevolent slaveholding States. Just before the outbreak of the Civil War the free Negro was receiving practically no consideration in the South and very little in the North. History here repeats itself, then, in showing the varying attitude of the whites toward the blacks in the cycles of national development.

the slaves. This enables the student to figure out for himself whether the slaveholding was an act of exploitation or of benevolence. The small number of slaves, however, does not always signify benevolence on the part of the owner.

ABSENTEE OWNERSHIP OF SLAVES IN THE UNITED STATES IN 1830

Scholars have for a number of years desired documentary evidence as to the extent of absentee ownership of slaves in the United States. When slavery was attacked during the ante-bellum period, defenders of the institution often published dissertations showing how close the relations were between master and slave. On the other hand, the anti-slavery groups contended that the facts to the contrary were overwhelmingly in support of the conclusion that there was such a little of such social contact, that the Negro slave tended toward social degradation as the institution became further removed from the patriarchal state.

In this study the Department of Research of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History has had the opportunity to extract from the census records of 1830 the names of the absentee owners of slaves in the United States at that time. As the history of slavery easily shows the tendency toward an increase in the number of such owners, this report of 1830 will evidently present the situation when slavery had its best chance to make a case for itself. The extent to which this sort of ownership prevailed will serve in the main as an index to the social contact of the master and slave classes.

In going through these records, the student will observe that few of the slave States were free of this evil of a disproportionate number of absentee owners, considered in the light of the defense of slavery. Some of these commonwealths, of course, had developed further in this direction than others. Slavery had in many places become a business, which in the economic development of this country had to employ the same processes used in any other endeavor. The slave tended to pass from the mind as a human being, and to appear more like goods and chattels.

The situation in 1830 was not exactly like that nearer the Civil War. There were comparatively few cases of absentee ownership of large groups of slaves in the District of Columbia, Delaware, Kentucky, Tennessee, or Missouri in 1830. Most cases of this sort in Maryland were small groups. The situation in Virginia and North Carolina was little different from that in Maryland. Louisiana in this respect was an exception to the rule. Alabama, Florida and Mississippi, like some of the other States, had not developed sufficiently by that time to warrant a proper estimate of their situation. Georgia showed many evidences of the tendency toward absentee ownership. It was very pronounced in South Carolina.

Absentee ownership, however, did not always mean that the Negro was thereby inconvenienced or degraded. A master often permitted certain slaves to live by themselves in the discharge of some special duty in which they had shown unusual capacity. Such groups of slaves, as the records will show, were usually small, consisting mainly of a man and his family. There are many cases of one Negro slave living by himself. An investigation shows that some of such Negroes were practically free or were working out their freedom on liberal terms.

These records, moreover, are not clear on many points which the student would like to understand. In cases of one or two slaves it is sometimes difficult to determine whether the name is that of the absentee owner or that of the slave in charge of the establishment. These same records give the names of slaves occasionally regarded as heads of families. Where it is not specifically stated that they are slaves, there often appear such names as Aunt Violet, Black John, Jupiter, or Cato. These, of course, were names usually given Negroes.

In the case of an estate of some one recently deceased, it is also doubtful whether the white persons on the plantation were serving in the capacity of overseers and managers, or were the actual heirs of the deceased. Where the whole group consists of slaves, however, the absentee ownership is clear and the overseer himself was usually a slave. In some other cases the records show that the overseer was a free Negro.

There are many cases of large groups of slaves with only one white person among them. Such a white person might have been either the owner or the overseer. As the records do not make this clear, however, they have been omitted here.
